About the Floor Care Module

Flooring is one of the first things people notice when they walk into a building, so it is vital that you keep them in tiptop shape. To do this, the knowledge of the different types of flooring is essential to ensure you not only clean them effectively but also maintain them properly.

You'll be surprised to find out how many different types of flooring exist, so this module will help you choose them to make sure they are fit for purpose. We will go into depth on each of the different types of flooring from linoleum and vinyl to wooden and slate and talk about the composition, properties and the precautions needed for each.

Our handy three-step approach will carefully guide you through the process of floor care preparation, protection and maintenance. Towards the end of this module you will have the opportunity to familiarise yourself with general cleaning methods and applications.
