About the COSHH Awareness Module

Hazardous substances can cause harm if not properly controlled during use. Due to their harmful effect, it is vitally important to fully understand The Health and Safety Act 1974.

This course explains the set of measures that employers and employees must take to control exposure to hazardous substances as well as protect those who may also be exposed to them. You will also learn about the Classification, Labelling and Packaging (CLP) regulations.

Following the COSHH course you will be able to read safety data sheets for cleaning products and understand the data you need to handle various products safely.
